

The Meg Perry Center

The Meg Perry Center is dedicated to educational exchange and social action, so that individuals and our community may be empowered to work for peace and justice. The space is a collaboration between Peace Action Maine and the Foglight Collective.

This site is built in Wordpress. The center hosts the server which host many of the other sites in my profile. Meg Perry was an energetic, passionate, kind and dedicated person. Meg went down to the Gulf Coast region to assist in Hurricane Relief efforts in September 2006, she returned to organize more people to go down to the region and they travelled down on the Frida Bus. In her last weeks in this world, Meg worked to support people whose lives were torn apart by the hurricanes. She cleaned people's homes, cleared trees from roofs, read stories to kids, distributed supplies, met with other relief workers and organizers, and tilled up soil for a community garden. Meg died in glory, living life to its fullest and following her passion and visions.

Her life is an inspiration to all. Meg Perry's death is a major tragedy and loss for all of our communities and she will be sorely missed. We are dedicated to carrying on her spirit as we work to make the world a more beautiful place.
